

MARK BRADY

MANAGING DIRECTOR & GLOBAL HEAD, M&A
William Blair

Mark G. Brady is Global Head of Mergers & Acquisitions at William Blair & Company, where he has been an investment banker since 1991. He was named a Partner of the firm in 1996. During his time at William Blair, Mark has successfully completed more than 150 acquisition and financing transactions with companies domiciled in 14 different countries. Mark's recent transactions include the $7.2 billion sale of Molex to Koch Industries, the $335 million sale of TMW Systems to Trimble Navigation, the $860 million merger of ACCO Brands and MeadWestvaco's consumer business via Reverse Morris Trust, and the $345 million sale of Convergent Technologies to KRG Capital. He was named 2012 Dealmaker of the Year by Mergers and Acquisitions Magazine and 2008 Middle Market Investment Banker of the Year by Investment Dealer's Digest (IDD). He is Chairman of William Blair's Fairness Opinion Committee.

Mark graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Northwestern University and received his MBA in Finance and Accounting from the University of Chicago Graduate School of Business. He lives in the Lincoln Park area of Chicago with his wife and four children.